Peter is on the Mend!

Dear Friends and Fast Lane Family,

Grab that brew and come along for the Fast Lane escapades for the week.

Many of you have been asking about Peter—he's continuing to recover and is doing well. This week Peter decided to take a walk down to his favorite wild alligator friend and pay it a visit. We always know Peter is doing a bit better when he takes that walk. His energy and enthusiasm remain as strong as ever, and it's been wonderful to see him steadily on the mend and staying so connected to everything ahead.

Peter also had a special visit at his home this past weekend. He spent time with his friend Oscar Padilla, who introduced him to James Nichols. Peter spoke so highly of both—always a sign that the conversation was meaningful and memorable.

A Bit of Envy

While I haven't been on the road myself lately, I've been living vicariously through the incredible journeys unfolding across our calendar—and I have to admit, I'm feeling a bit envious of those of you heading to the Dolomites this season. With every call and email, the excitement is infectious. I can't help but get enthusiastic about the next tour!

From everything I'm seeing and hearing, it's shaping up to be nothing short of spectacular. The combination of those dramatic peaks, sweeping drives, and the thoughtful details our team has layered in... it's truly one of those once-in-a-lifetime experiences that somehow keeps calling you back again and again. If you're lucky enough to be going, I have a feeling this will be a trip you won't soon forget.

Plus, you'll be driving it in a Porsche (I love the Panamera! <~ I blame Peter) and you know what they say, "in a Porsche, the destination is never the point—it's just a very good excuse!"

Let's Talk Tuscany

My own fond memories still take me back to our Tuscany Tour in 2023—the rhythm of the drives (in a Panamera nevertheless), the unforgettable meals, and the camaraderie that builds so naturally along the way. Watching from the back row as friendships develop and morph into something a little more by the time everyone is ready to depart. It's those moments that remind me why what we do is so special. Once again, I'll remind everyone that we have room in this final tour. Registration is open until July 7th. Of course, some more of my photos below.

A Wonderful Visit

Back here at home, we've had some wonderful time together as well. Thomas, who leads our European Operations, has been in town, and it's been such a pleasure working side by side for a stretch. There's something invaluable about being in the same place, sharing ideas and energy in real time—it's been both productive and genuinely enjoyable. We were able to work in tandem on the Dolomites tour, without worry of time differences and schedule changes. He departs back for Germany in a few days, and will be missed.

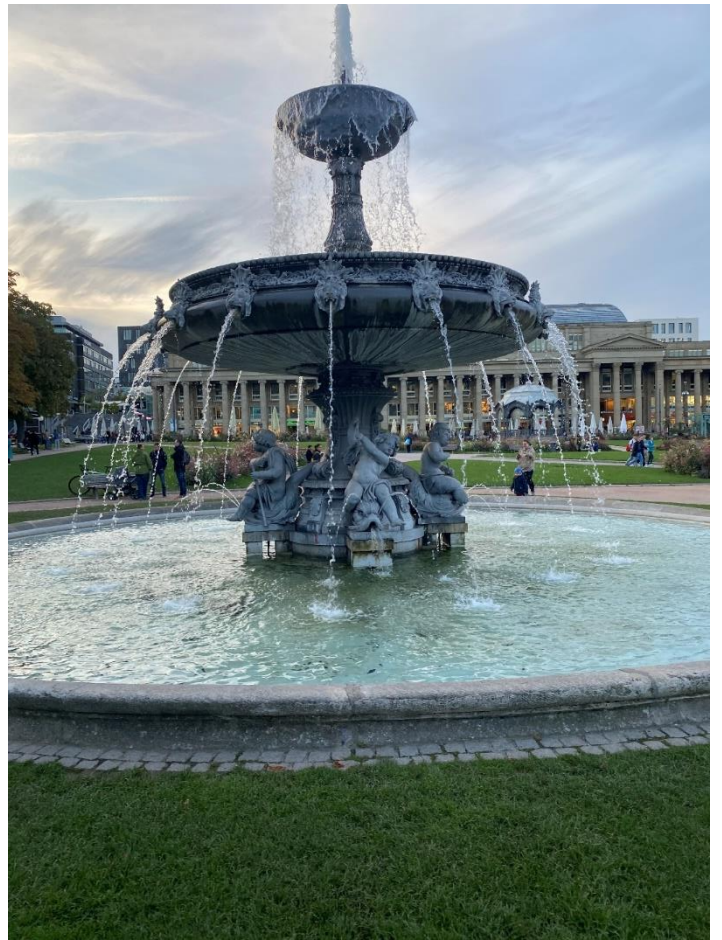

I'd also like to take a moment to recognize Heather, who has been working tirelessly behind the scenes, supporting just about everyone and everything lately. Her dedication has made a tremendous difference, and we're all incredibly grateful. She has assisted Peter in his recovery, me in the office and has made sure all of Peters visitors were welcomed with warmth and laughter.

As always, thank you for being such an important part of this community. Whether you're traveling with us soon or simply following along, we're so glad you're here.

Please stay healthy and happy. I'm looking forward to the great times we will have together again with my Team on one of the fabulous tours we are planning for 2026. All the best to you, Peter
